A View of Hope

Master your images

Thought is the most powerful force in the Universe. As such, if a group of beings wanted to influence humanity's evolution and control the planet, they would produce images to control human's minds.

It's hard to hold an image of health, abundance, and peacefulness when bombarded with fear-based images of death, war and violence, or the marketing images that mold us into superficial, competitive clones.

Leaders and citizens are constantly distracted by images that lead to our planet's destruction and steamroll over groups who get in the way. Fueled by the money-making global war machine, we simply kill.

The sad news is we perpetuate it when we get caught up in the distractions of finger-pointing and blame. The good news, is that if dark images are running the mayhem, any one of us can just as easily project images of Heaven on Earth to promote love and healing on the planet.

The humanity I described is controlled like robots. Time to wake up and choose what to focus on! Time to release yourself from the distractions and see them for what they are, images from love-starved entities. There is a constant pull of expectation and demand that the images instill in us: how we should look and what to portray to others versus being who we really are. When you look in the mirror, do you really see you, or do you see you stacked up against a thousand other potential images from media, family, friends and society?

I know I'm preaching to the choir, but more distractions can be released, and our light and beingness that springs from the depth of our love can have even more permission to emerge. The big enemy to the beings that run the distraction energy is your focus inward, back to God and Divinity within you. Within you is the source of Love.

The distractions are amazing. I am sure you have noted that the role of any leader at this point is a joke. Their jobs are meant for many people, and the constant distractions keep them from focusing on anything long enough to effect a change.

The constant juggling of different factions keeps citizens focusing from issue to issue, person to person, in blame. Then, there are the distractions of money, dysfunctional families, health, food, electronics. We are hypnotized into the game of keeping up, fitting in, having enough. There's no time to stop and look within and inspire ourselves to seek alternatives and see ourselves in sane and loving circumstances.

The few people on the planet controlling this game only sit and hold the image of power over others and separation from God. They encourage fear of differences. Why? There are many reasons, but don't be stuck on the obvious one: money and power.

Words to Grow by ~ Mary Bell Nyman The gift of day dreaming

Who are you as a spirit? Most of us have asked ourselves this question, but wonder if we have the right answer. How do you separate spirit, mind and body from each other? If you can't see your spirit, how do you identify it? These are just some basic questions that should have been taught in school. It would have made more sense and actually prepared us for life. What about the energy that happens between people? Everyone feels it, but doesn't know how to describe it or wonders if the other person felt it as well. Did I make the whole thing up or was the energy I felt real?

School wasn't much help. In many of the indigenous tribes around the world you can't take spirit out of the language. In New Zealand schools, the Maori fought to keep the words for spirit in the educational system and won! But for most of us, we had to pick up the understanding in church. The problem with church is it made spirit seem outside of us. Only perfect saints had spirit, which made it seem out of reach for the average person. If you happened to be a child who saw spirit, most adults invalidated it because they didn't understand it.

If we are lucky, as we grow up we begin a search for our own spiritual truth. One of the ways we find it is through drifting, where you the spirit moves in and out of the body. We can learn to identify both experiences. I am in the body and now I am floating out above my body. The "I" in both cases is the spirit part of you.

Most children under six see spirits and talk about them. They have conversations with dead grandparents and will tell you about them in a matter of fact way. They have great certainty that their communication is real. It is when they start school that the programming begins that separates spirit as a normal occurrence to something that isn't spoken of.

The entities holding the negative images started out like you, on a journey to find God. They chose fear instead of love to find God. On this planet of choice, they challenge God to be known and stop the madness. Then, they would know God existed.

So that's where you step up. You, who knows you are Co-Creator. You know that your thoughts and action present an image, a vision of divinity. Show these beings what love is. Create from a love-filled mind. Limit the distractions in your life so you can hold the image of Heaven on Earth right now. Let go of your schedule and gadgets for a chunk of time each day and allow yourself to wander, unoccupied, to the depths of you, where nothing but love abides.

All the truths of the universe are within you, nothing is hidden. Give yourself the time and space to seek your inspiration. The most powerful force to facilitate healing on the planet is your loving gift of uncluttered time. Time to focus on what is important to you. Create and validate imagery that supports your vision of where we are going, and the potential to go beyond what we can even imagine.

In your thoughts and prayers, remember that Creator works through you. Don't come from a place of asking for it to happen. When religious leaders programmed us to ask an idol for what we need, they were strengthening the dark forces, because people who have to beg and ask don't know that they already Have.

The power of prayer is the feeling of what you have within you already. The loving truth of you. Breathe and feel a connection with your heart. Feel you are co-creator with Source. We are all One. Release the lie of separation. In Oneness, you wrote the following prayer. (Replace the words Lord and He with Love if you feel more comfortable!)

Psalm 23: "The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want. He maketh me lie down in green pastures, he leads me beside still waters, he restoreth my soul. He guides me in paths of righteousness for his name's sake. Even though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil. For you are with me, your rod and thy staff they comfort me. You prepare a table before me in the presence of mine enemies. You anoint my head with oil; my cup overflows. Surely goodness and love will follow me all the days of my life, and I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever. Amen."

Please join us for a free healing or one of our classes or workshops. Our community is dedicated to the empowerment of you, eternal Spirit. Let's imagine our world to wholeness. May you feel blessed and supported on your path!♥

A GUY'S VIEW: GETTING IN THE GAME

by Brooks Witter

I'm not a follower of the adage "no pain, no gain." However, I have seen in my experience—both personally and in my work with clients—that the more we care about something, the more vulnerable we are to opening ourselves to stress and uncertainty.

Think about the stress before going to interview for your dream job. Now imagine that you are going in to interview for a job that doesn't inspire you. Do you see a difference in how your mind can write off the stuff you don't care about but that when it comes to what really matters, BAM! it shows up with its teeth bared. When we really open ourselves up to what we are passionate about, the mind revs it's nervous engines with doom-and-gloom stories to keep us safe and spare us the possibility of failing or not achieving what we truly and deeply long for.

So, would you rather play it safe on the sideline and believe all the "reasons" why you're not ready to enter the game, or jump in, learn, and be willing to take a hit, miss a layup, or overshoot? The first option may keep you from making mistakes, but living a life removed from your passion. To choose the latter option requires a willingness to say 'Yes!' to your life and allow your mind to do its thing without letting fears and insecurities run the show.

Exercise: Sit down, close your eyes, and allow your mind to be still. Imagine that you are sitting on the sideline of the most important game of your life—your dream job, the relationship you desire, or simply doing what matters most in your life. Now conjure up the fears and stories that keep you from entering onto the field and visualize yourself putting these stories into the pockets of your sweatshirt. Visualize taking off your sweatshirt and dropping it as you stand up and enter the game. The great thing is that you are not only the player, but also the coach, and you can put yourself in at any time. For the last moment, just connect with that sense of being in the game, doing what you love even though you may not be perfect. The irony is, you already are.

Brooks spends his days playing the game of life with gusto. A graduate of the Contemplative Psychotherapy program at Naropa University, Brooks is a therapist in Boulder helping people unhook from habitual patterns that no longer serve their highest good. He takes classes at PHC and is currently inspired by the singular habits of the honey badger. Contact Brooks or follow his blog, go to: www.luminouscounseling.com.

Taught by Hope Hewetson and Brijanna Carbone

We stop being allowed to drift in and out of the body and are punished for daydreaming and not always paying attention. Yet this is one place that spirit loves to play. It is where genius comes from and is a great way to explore new ideas. Creativity starts with playing with new ideas outside the body and bringing them back to you. Thinkers love to drift, letting ideas come to them and seeing outside the box.

Yes, there is a balance to being in the body and being out of the body. When you can keep your conscious awareness with you when you drift you can bring back original ideas. If you are unconscious or asleep when you drift you lose the ability to retain the information you gained while out of body. Here is where part of our challenge lies. As you meditate, you begin to train your spirit to stay awake and remember what you are experiencing. When you ground, or center yourself, the spirit part of you fully engages in the body and your awareness doubles. You learn to be awake and really live life, not just go through the motions.

The spirit part of us has all the answers to any question our body has. When we are present and in our bodies, answers are easy to find. You separate from all the games being played on Earth and find your true self—a miracle for us older folks but not near as hard for the sweet spirits coming to Earth now! The gift of 2012 is the awareness of the spirit. It is so refreshing. Imagine how different your life would have been if you were validated and cherished for your spiritual gifts right along with the physical ones! It's not too late, do it now! Namaste. ♡

Creed of the Church of Inner Light

Psychic Horizons Center is a spiritual sanctuary where you can discover your own truths and obtain your spiritual freedom this lifetime. "What if a man gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" asks Jesus. To a mystic with eyes turned inward to infinity and cosmic consciousness, his words have great meaning. Obtaining a one-to-one contact between the cosmic and a living soul, which flames quietly, brings a lifetime of contentment and the realization that nothing in this world is worth exchanging for that attainment.

- from the Creed of the Church of Inner Light.

This newsletter is lovingly dedicated to Very Rt. Rev. Lewis Bostwick, founder, Church of Divine Man.

“Open my heart, Let
love pour through me, Center my soul upon the path of peace, Make of my life a melody of love.”—Hafiz
